

The Washington Appellate Project is hiring a staff attorney. The Washington Appellate Project is a nonprofit public defense firm of 15 attorneys providing the highest quality representation to indigent clients appealing criminal convictions, civil commitments and termination of parental rights throughout the State of Washington. Our office's lawyers appear before the Washington Court of Appeals, the Washington Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. We place a high value on collaboration and creative client-centered advocacy. Our attorneys have won numerous cases reshaping Washington's criminal justice and family defense systems to address racial and economic disparity. These include cases invalidating Washington's Death Penalty, bringing about juvenile justice reforms, and limiting financial penalties.

Candidates should have three years of appellate experience, possess superior written and oral advocacy skills, and a strong commitment to working with low-income individuals and marginalized communities. Candidates must be eligible at the time of employment for admission to the Washington Bar pursuant to Washington Admission to Practice Rule 3.

Initial salary range is $80,000 to $90,000. Benefits include health insurance and employer sponsored SIMPLE IRA plan with employer contribution. Please submit cover letter, resume, references, and writing sample to Gregory Link, greg@washapp.org, by September 20, 2019.
